

FINANCIAL SERVICES CLASS ACTIONS

OVERVIEW

BCLP's Financial Services Class Action Team represents the world's leading financial institutions in high-stakes class actions in state and federal courts throughout the country and world. Our clients include 30 of the top 50 banks in the world, as well as numerous mortgage servicers, regional banks, trust companies and other financial institutions. We are deeply invested in understanding the ever-evolving litigation and regulatory risks and trends our clients face. We have a knowledgeable national team that leverages experienced trial lawyers, class action defense lawyers, and appellate and regulatory specialists, and we regularly handle on a nationwide basis litigation ranging from class actions to jury trials, high-stakes appeals and regulatory investigations.

Our team has defended our financial services clients against hundreds of putative class actions brought under a broad spectrum of federal laws, including TILA, HOEPA, RESPA, FCRA, FACTA, EFTA, FDCPA, ECOA, FHA, BSA and RICO, as well as privacy laws, unfair and deceptive practices statutes, and state common law. Some of our current representations include:

- Claims under RESPA alleging sham fees, illegal kickbacks or marked up third-party fees in connection with mortgage origination;
- Claims against mortgage servicers under the FDCPA for alleged failure to provide debt validation and other practices;
- Claims alleging state law claims for breach of contract or improper servicing activity in connection with servicing and REO sales;
- Suits under state unfair competition laws relating to mortgage origination and servicing practices including force-placed insurance and servicing fees;
- Suits alleging claims for failure to provide loan modifications; and
- Suits seeking rescission and other TILA remedies, as well as suits alleging unfair competition in the financial services industry.

Our team understands the variety of risk considerations involved in consumer litigation and regulatory enforcement. We work to achieve matter resolutions that meet both our clients' short-term needs and broader strategic goals. Up front, our class action lawyers focus on assessing our clients' risk and putative class scoping, and the best ways to mitigate that risk, including appropriate corrective measures. We develop effective early exit strategies, such as pleading, standing and venue challenges, grounds for defeating, or limiting, the claims on their merits and class certification, and ways to limit the burden that class litigation can impose on our clients' limited resources. We understand the complexity of the financial services industry, including that our clients transact high volumes of business on a daily basis within a tightly regulated environment. We leverage our knowledge of our clients' internal system to create streamlined systems to mitigate discovery costs and burdens that may impact client teams and distract from conducting other business.

Our practice involves much more than litigation. We also assist clients in pre-suit mitigation measures, such as internal investigations and root cause analyses to identify potential class claim triggers, development of internal company procedures, analysis of emerging trends/risks, and advice about avoidance of class claims. We additionally have experience with government investigations that can trigger class action risk, and how to mitigate such risk. Because we handle large volumes of individual claims against many of our financial institution clients, we are adept at identifying and mitigating class action risk often before such claims are asserted.

Applying the FCA's proposed new guidance on non-financial misconduct

Non-financial misconduct in financial services firms is back at the top of the agenda following the concurrent publication of the FCA's Consultation Paper 20/23 (Diversity and inclusion in the financial sector – working together to drive change) and the PRA's Consultation Paper 18/23 (Diversity and inclusion in PRA-regulated firms). The PRA and FCA appear to be agreed that (a) non-financial misconduct incidents are relevant when considering whether an individual has acted with integrity and that (b) for senior managers and certification staff, sometimes behaviour in their personal lives that is unconnected to their job will be relevant to their fitness and propriety to work in financial services. How are HR and Compliance professionals to respond to the new role of moral arbiter that these proposed guidelines point towards, and where will the practical and legal challenges arise?
